

iControl Networks Receives 2011 Smart Grid Excellence Award

iControl's OpenHome Software Platform Honored for Exceptional Innovation

Redwood City, CA (November 28, 2011) — iControl Networks announced today that its OpenHome software platform has received a 2011 Smart Grid Excellence Award from SmartGrid.TMCnet.com, a TMC and Crossfire Media sponsored technology media Website.

"The solutions that have been recognized with the Smart Grid Excellence Award reflect the diverse range of innovation driving this market. Congratulations to iControl Networks, which exemplified the best of smart grid technologies in 2011," said Carl Ford, co-founder and community developer, Crossfire.

iControl's OpenHome software platform enables home security companies, broadband service providers and utilities to offer the next generation of home management, security and connectivity to their customers. The solution allows users to control and connect to their homes remotely, via the web and other mobile devices, and delivers interactive life safety and lifestyle services, such as home energy management, monitoring and automation.

"I am pleased to acknowledge iControl Networks for its contribution to the advancement of Smart Grid technologies by bestowing our Second Annual Smart Grid Excellence Award to them," said Rich Tehrani, CEO, TMC. "Congratulations and I look forward to more innovation in 2012."

Winners are published on SmartGrid.TMCnet.com and included in its E-newsletter.
